VAT CHANGE THREATENS CHURCHES

MORE churches will face a fight for survival if a Government scheme to help with restoration costs is scrapped.

The Listed Places of Worship grant, which allows historic churches and Canterbury Cathedral to claim back 17.5 per cent VAT on renovation work, is due to expire in March, 2011.

But the Church of England has said there is a danger the legislation will not be renewed and is gearing up to campaign for the rebate to continue.

The Rev Jean Burrows is the rector of three churches: St Michael's, Hernhill; and St Barnabas's, and St Peter and St Paul, in Boughton-under-Blean.

She said: "The impact could be drastic. So much of our time and effort is put into the building and because most of my churches are Grade I listed we have to do things properly, but it is more expensive."

"A lot of money that comes in to the churches is for the buildings, so anything that helps is good."

"Because they are historic buildings the villages would really miss them, but often it is churchgoers who are the ones faced with the bills.

"We have been raising £90,000 for one of my churches for conservation work which has to start in June, so any money that comes back through VAT is important. If we couldn't claim back the VAT we would have to raise at least another £15,000."

"If the Government wants us to keep these buildings it has to help more. If you don't do the restoration, things get worse and worse."

Since 2001 churches and cathedrals have been able to claim back more

ECHOING BACK TO ITS ROOTS

Canterbury Cathedral hosted more than 350 singers from 12 universities and colleges as the Church Universities and Colleges Choirs Festival returned to its roots. The event, a celebration of shared history and choral music, was founded by Professor Grenville Hancox, director of music at Canterbury Christ Church University, in 1988.

4,000 homes inevitable, says council leader

■ BY JENNY ARMSTRONG

THE council has 'no choice' about the building of thousands of houses in south Canterbury, according to a letter written by leader John Gilbey.

In a letter replying to concerns raised by Trisha Cheeseworth, of New House Lane, Councillor Gilbey said: "Anyone who tells you we have a choice in this, at least while the current government is in power, is simply not telling the truth."

The council leader wrote the letter on March 5, while the public consultation was still open on where 4,000 government-required homes should be built.

Mr Gilbey has since said: "What we don't have a choice in is the number of houses – we have every choice in where they go. No one has said yet exactly where they are going, because we have not done that exercise."

"At the moment we do not feel we have anywhere to put the houses other than south Canterbury, but if anyone can come up with a sensible idea of where 1,500 to 2,500 houses could go that would be fine."

"But I don't know of anywhere else where there is sufficient space. There don't appear to be any sites big enough, unfortunately."

"If someone could come up with somewhere else, I would be very happy about it."

But locals are so concerned about the plans that they have formed a super-group of residents' associations called the Hilltop, Iffin, Merton and New House Lane Action Group, and more areas are set to join soon.

Mum-to-be Melissa Dachtler from New House Lane, who also has a young daughter, said: "Local people really care about their community and really care about the way they live. People still walk down to the farms to go and collect their eggs."

"We moved from a big estate in Gravesend that had lots of crime.

OBJECTIONS: A poster opposing the plans

We decided we would rather commute and bring up our family in a nice area breathing fresh air, being happy.

"My husband and I are really upset that this can just go ahead on this scale. Our children would be growing up on a building site for 15 years."

Her main concerns are that the housing would be out of proportion to the rural character of the area, there will be air and noise pollution and traffic chaos and it will take prime agricultural land out of use.

Building noise and disruption is also a concern to many locally.

Both Guy Voizey, the Liberal Democrat parliamentary candidate for the area, and Julian Brazier, the incumbent Conservative MP, have said they oppose the building scheme, although Mr Brazier has said the situation is difficult.

He said: "The government is forcing huge numbers of houses on Kent and the council is put in the invidious position of having to put them somewhere."

Jean Samuel, Labour parliamentary candidate for the district, said: "Using the proposed greenfield site in South Canterbury for 2,000 house build is not the way forward."

Mrs Samuel has suggested building fewer houses south of Canterbury and instead using the Hersden site and brownfield sites in Herne Bay and Whitstable.

Action group formed against homes plan

A PROTEST group set up to combat the threat of thousands of new houses south of Canterbury has got off to a strong start.

The Hilltop, Iffin, Merton and New House Lane's Action Group – HIMN for short – had a packed inaugural meeting to set up the association.

Residents filled every seat at St Faith's Hall, New House Lane, last Wednesday, to adopt a constitution and elect a committee.

The group will work with other residents' associations and conservation organisations such as Protect Kent.

The association also decided to expand to include homeowners and tenants from Thanington Road and Wincheap.

Chairman of the new group, Professor Clive Church, said: "The council favours a giant development.

"This will blight the lives of thousands of people who will suffer even more traffic noise and pollution and all of Canterbury will have permanent gridlock."

"All this adds up to a health and economic disaster for the city."

VAT campaign launched to save churches

than £100 million of VAT spent on renovation work. Julian Hills is the Diocesan secretary – effectively the CEO of the Church in Kent.

He said: "The Listed Places of Worship Grant has brought a huge amount of respite from VAT on repair and maintenance bills for many listed churches.

"Abolishing the scheme would mean an additional 17.5 per cent on all church repair works, and in this economic climate most churches would struggle to meet this burden."

"Churches will not be able to afford essential work on these beautiful buildings."

And losing the scheme could have an impact on tourism, too.

A Canterbury Cathedral official said: "We urge the Government to carry on with this funding. Cathedrals are one of the biggest draws for tourists, both domestic and from overseas."

"Anything that can help small congregations keep these buildings in good repair will aid tourism and the local economy."

The Church of England is asking people to write to MPs and parliamentary candidates before the general election and ask for the scheme to continue.

Future of town goes on display

TO find out more about how Herne Bay will be regenerated, go along to an exhibition in the King's Hall next Wednesday.

It is intended to give people an opportunity to see how the big projects have been progressing over the last year.

These include moving the sports centre from the pier to Herne Bay High School, redeveloping the town centre, extending the Herons Leisure Centre and the Memorial Park.

Each of the projects will have its own stand with city councillors and council officers there to answer questions and give information.

More community projects are planned so locals will also get a chance to see how they will be affected and find out how to get involved. There will also be stands from some of Herne Bay's most prominent businesses.

Councillor Peter Lee, executive member for Herne Bay regeneration, said: "A number of major projects are making good progress in Herne Bay at the moment, so now is the right time to update local people on where we have got to and what happens next.

"Previous events like this have been popular so we are hoping for a big turnout."

The exhibition from 3-7pm on Wednesday, is free and open to all.

For more information about the event or Herne Bay's regeneration go to www.canterbury.gov.uk/hernebay projects or call regeneration manager Patrick Rynne on 01227 862329.

Sports club expansion opposed by neighbours

■ BY JENNY ARMSTRONG

NEIGHBOURS of Polo Farm sports club have united to fight what has become a hugely controversial plan to expand facilities on the site.

More than 430 people have written either supporting or objecting to Polo Farm's application to build a new clubhouse, two floodlit hockey pitches, a practice hockey pitch, an indoor sports hall, a cricket pavilion, three tennis courts and grandstands.

If successful there will also be a new building to house Christ Church University's leisure and tourism department.

Those living on nearby Littlebourne Road, Stodmarsh Road and Trenley Drive handed a petition with 316 signatures opposing the plan to Canterbury council's development control manager Lukasz Majer on Thursday, March 11.

Objector Adrian Watkinson said: "This has managed to incense and unite what has been a very loose and unstructured community."

"It has actually brought everybody together with the realisation that what the community needs to do is to speak with one voice."

Diana Beaupré, who lives on Trenley Drive, next to Polo Farm said: "If granted, this application will totally destroy the living standards of over 120 homes which border Polo Farm."

"It will see the destruction of a further 30 acres of local countryside and cause a further mushroom of light and noise pollution across the area."

Chairman of the Littlebourne and Stodmarsh

ONE VOICE: Objectors to Polo Farm's expansion plans have handed over a 316-signature petition to Canterbury council Roads Community Association John Foster is also against further expansion of the site.

He said that, if allowed, the site would have the same footprint as 10,000 London buses and would be three times the size of the football hub which could be built on Ridlands Farm, south of Canterbury.

Mr Foster said: "We are in a pretty rural place. On three sides of this site is not only ancient woodland but also an area of special scientific interest. It is inappropriate to have something of this nature stuck in the middle of the countryside, two miles outside Canterbury. We have something here already, but we are saying 'No more'.

But some people support the scheme, including Mia Kennedy from All Saints' Lane.

She said: "I offer my support for the above application. It is important everyone has access to good sports facilities and it would be wonderful to extend what is already a very successful sports venue."

Representatives of Polo Farm were unavailable for comment.

Heroin haul the largest in years

A HEROIN stash captured in Canterbury is the biggest police have found in the area for several years.

The narcotics, worth £2,500, and more than £1,000 cash were found after police raided a flat in Pine Tree Avenue on Thursday, March 11 after neighbours complained of drug dealing, particularly in an alleyway off London Road.

A 20-year-old man from Margate and a 29-year-old woman from Canterbury were arrested on suspicion of supplying a controlled drug and have been released on bail until May 9.

Inspector Terry Chuter said: "This is one of the largest street level seizures of Class A drugs that we have seen for several years."

Prints lead cops to paint trail trio

FOOTPRINTS gave away three boys spotted jumping on paint cans and spilling it onto the street.

Police followed the cream and white trail to find the eight and nine year olds, who had been misbehaving in Forrester Close at 5.45pm on Sunday.

The youngsters and their parents had to go back to the mess to help clear it up.

Disrupted rail service debated in Commons

THE fight for a better train services has been taken to Westminster after commuters complained their needs are no longer being met.

Non-high speed rail services to London's Cannon Street station, a favourite for commuters because of its proximity to the city, have been cut since the new high speed line to St Pancras was introduced.

And services from Whitstable and Herne Bay to Cannon Street take longer because they now stop at more stations such as Meopham.

But Southeastern, the train company which runs these lines, has nonetheless raised season ticket prices.

Herne Bay MP Roger Gale initiated a commons debate about the timetabling problems on March 10.

He said: "High fare-paying commuters have been subjected to delay and disruption as a result of the Department of Transport's imposition of a hybrid timetable upon a network and an infrastructure that has simply not been adequately adapted to accommodate it."

During the commons debate the MP said: "We would like to see – not in three years, not in three months, but immediately – a cut in fares to reflect the poor standard of service."

"We would also like to see a return to the sensible timetabling of trains and an apology for the manner in which the Department for Transport and Southeastern trains have to date failed the high fare-paying travelling public of east Kent."

Canterbury and Whitstable MP Julian Brazier, the shadow transport minister, has also said train arrangements since the high speed service was introduced leave much to be desired.

After the debate he said: "I receive emails and letters from constituents who are angry about the new timetable and deterioration of service. Poor connections are preventing people getting to and from work."

A spokesman for Southeastern said: "We have been continually reviewing the timetable and May will be the first opportunity to make minor changes to areas such as the length of trains and connection times at stations, to help improve the punctuality of the services."

"Any other changes, such as the suggested introduction of new services to the Herne Bay area, would require a change to the timetable service specification, which is the responsibility of the Department for Transport."

Mugged on Mother's Day at Mum's grave

TWO muggers robbed a woman visiting her mum's grave on Mothering Sunday. The 47-year-old woman was in the Canterbury Cemetery at 3pm at a grave near the back entrance.

A young man asked her for directions to town and, while she explained, a woman pushed over and the pair grabbed her coat containing her purse.

The man and a woman then ran away and, when the victim found her purse, the cash inside it had been taken.

The victim landed on her knee when she was pushed by the man and had to be taken to hospital for a check-up.

The male robber is between 20 and 25, 6ft tall and was wearing a black knitted woollen hat and dark clothing. He was also carrying a rucksack with a piece of wood sticking out of the top.

The female thief was between 18 and 20, wearing a white Adidas tracksuit and red and white trainers. She is slim with blonde hair in a ponytail.

Witnesses or anyone with information should contact DC Louise Hammond on 01227 868 285.

■ A BOMB scare saw Burgate in Canterbury cordoned off on Sunday afternoon after a suspect package was left at the cathedral shop.

Police were called at 1.40pm and staff left the shop, which was already closed to customers. They then closed the street between the junctions with Longmarket and the Buttermarket.

The package turned out to be a gift card making set and the street was re-opened by 2.30pm.

The 36-year-old man who had left the package was traced at 3.30pm and was taken to St Martin's mental health hospital by police.

GUERRILLA GARDENING: The neglected area next to St George's Roundabout is showing its first new shoots

Gardeners plot a new look for disused spaces

GUERRILLA gardeners are quietly doing their best to transform Canterbury's forgotten corners into places of beauty.

These dedicated volunteers are not young firebrand revolutionaries but three respectable, middle-aged ladies in the gardening sub-committee of the Oaten Hill and District Society.

Their current project is the neglected piece of land between the Odeon cinema and St George's roundabout which a recent council report noted as "an area of particular concern".

Sophie Scott, head gardener, said: "We very much want to improve the area that has been a bomb site since the Baedeker raids in 1942.

"Every time single time I walk into town I go past that area and I can't bear it really. It is so sad because it looks so awful."

"It is our city. We may not have a legal entitlement to the streets but it is our city and our home and we have to look after it."

But instead of complaining about the land the concerned citizens have been talking to the council, contractors, local businesses and landowners about making the patch of grass and trees into something to be proud of.

They have convinced Serco to replace cracked, flaking concrete planters with new ones made from railway sleepers which will also serve as benches.

The council will supply a bin and the Odeon cinema group, who partly owns the land, has been press-ganged into meeting with the indomitable gardeners to find out how they can help.

EXCLUSIVE

■ BY JENNY ARMSTRONG

Guerrilla gardener Gillian Northcott Liles said: "It is amazing and it is unfortunate that such a prominent piece of land is in such a state, and I don't think the Odeon cinema would disagree with that. They are now very keen to work with us.

"It is all about trying to collaborate and bring people together. We get out there and do things and spend money. We are not a big organisation but we can spur other people into doing something."

And of course the ladies are not afraid to get their green fingers dirty.

Mrs Scott said: "Over the past three years I have planted the planters with bulbs and evergreens and weeded them, although not with any massive success because I broke my wrist last year.

"People mostly have been amazingly supportive.

"When I first kept saying I wanted to do something about the planters people all said they would be vandalised, but the worst that has happened is that a couple of years ago a couple of daffodil heads were blown off and last summer sat on a begonia.

"It is jolly lovely and I know local people would like to see something happen there because if I am out there with a pair of secateurs or weeding it is amazing the amount of people that come past and say how wonderful."

A rip-snoring production

AN AMATEUR theatre group are getting dressed up in their gowns, slippers and nightwear for their new production being held this week.

Canterbury Operatic Society's latest foot-tapping musical The Pajama Game is based on the hit Broadway show and Doris Day film of the same name.

Set in 1950s America, workers at the Sleepite Pajama factory are demanding a wage rise of seven-and-a-half cents a week and features well-known numbers such as Hey There, Small Talk, Steam Heat and Hernando's Hideaway.

The Pajama Game runs at The Gulbenkian Theatre all week until Saturday, when there's also a matinee the same day. Tickets are from £10 with a 2-for-1 offer for students tonight (Wednesday) and can be booked on 01227 769075 or online at www.thegulbenkian.co.uk.

NEWS IN BRIEF

A run for hearing hounds

AN ear specialist is set to further help his patients by running a marathon to raise money for hearing dogs for the deaf.

Hadrian Harris, a hearing aid audiologist at Specsavers Hearcare in Canterbury, is running his first marathon for charity Hearing Dogs for Deaf People.

He said: "I first heard of the work of the charity at work as my employer supports them.

"Last year I was privileged to meet Maggie Lee, who lives with her hearing dog Clay in Herne Bay, and who does sterling voluntary work for the Friends of the Marlowe Theatre.

"I realise the sense of isolation and frustration losing your hearing can cause and feel hearing dogs do a wonderful job improving the quality of life of those suffering from severe hearing loss."

Hearing dogs help by becoming a deaf person's ears, alerting them to everyday sounds such as doorbells and more serious alarms.

To sponsor Hadrian to run the Brighton marathon go to www.justgiving.com/Hadrian-Harris or pick up a sponsorship form from Specsavers Hearcare, 7 Rose Street, Canterbury.

Have a say on conservation

NOW is your chance to comment on changes to conservation areas in the city of Canterbury.

The council has been reviewing 13 of the settlement's preservation regions. Part of the process has involved giving an overview of the history and development of the city and its suburbs and defining what makes them special.

The boundary of each conservation area has also been considered, but no major changes have been proposed.

View the reports at www.canterbury.gov.uk/copnservationappraisals, Canterbury library or the council offices on Military Road.

For hard copies call 01227 862 191 or email conservation@canterbury.gov.uk. The council must receive comments by April 30.

Club's orate expectations

A PUBLIC speaking club is to hold its annual oratory contest next Tuesday.

The Canterbury Communicators will be competing to go on to attempt the East Kent area public speaking challenge, various competitions in the UK and Ireland, and ultimately international finals in America.

The competition will be held at the Manor Barn on Cockerling Road. Members of the public are welcome to join the audience free of charge. Tea and coffee is available from 7pm and the contest will start at 7.30pm.

Cyclists aim to raise cash for theatre project

AN ambitious Marlowe-related bike ride has been organised to raise money for Canterbury's new theatre.

Cyclists are being given the opportunity to cycle the 65 miles between the Ahoy Centre in Deptford, East London, close to where the playwright is buried, and the West Gate Towers in Canterbury where Marlowe grew up.

The idea of the Miles for Marlowe event is to forge a link between the 16th century writer and the new Marlowe Theatre in Canterbury.

During the route cyclists will be able to enjoy the scenic Kentish countryside along Watling Street during May.

The Friends of the Marlowe Action Group came up with the idea to raise funds for the theatre, which is due to open in the autumn of 2011.

Kerry Dunlop, who organised the ride, said: "I wanted to do something to raise money for the Marlowe theatre, which is a wonderful project.

"With this ride we can forge this link with the past and present, and the future."

■ BY JENNY ARMSTRONG

"This should be a lot of fun for everybody. I am sure we all want to get into the countryside after such a long, hard winter."

The ride will take place on May 16 and will begin between 8.30am and 10am.

Mr Dunlop said: "This is the ideal time to start training. Anyone who can ride 15 miles now should be able to cover 65 miles comfortably by mid-May."

The ride is open to all and costs £10 to enter. Entry forms can be downloaded from www.newmarlowetheatre.org.uk

So far fundraisers have managed to get £2 million of the £2.5 million which needs to be raised for the new theatre. The whole project will cost £25.7 million.

Donations have been secured from charitable trusts and foundations as well as from generous individuals.

Currently at the Marlowe Theatre site the steel frame is going up and the new building is finally taking shape.

Next developers will be putting in a pre-cast

Appeal after crash

A SMASH outside Wingham Bird Park has left police appealing for witnesses.

The crash happened when a car driving towards Sandwich on the A257 at 5.45pm on Tuesday, March 9 overtook a number of other moving vehicles.

A car going in the opposite direction had to brake to avoid a head-on collision, but was hit by the car behind. No one was injured.

The driver who overtook the line of traffic did not stop. Police would like anyone in any of the other vehicles who saw what happened to call PC Ian Crouch on 01622 690 690.

Flats 'a death trap'

A COUNCIL tower block in Herne Bay was a "death trap" according to a chartered surveyor.

Elizabeth Court in Herne Bay, broke fire safety laws. Smoke could have blocked emergency exits and there were not enough fire escape signs.

News agencies reported building inspector Arnold Tarling as saying the building is "a death trap waiting to happen".

Canterbury council has said work to make the building safe will be complete by the end of the month.

Driver's finger freed

FIREMEN had to rescue a woman who got her finger stuck in the boot of her car in Ravensbourne Avenue in Herne last Tuesday morning.

It took firefighters more than 15 minutes of hard work with hydraulic rescue equipment to enable the woman to pull her finger out.

QUESTION & ANSWER

ALICE MARTIN

Q & A

The aspiring actress and singer spoke to James Alexandre about her role in Canterbury Operatics' latest production at the Gulbenkian, how she first became involved in the theatre and her plans for the future

Q Tell me something about yourself

A I'm originally from Broadstairs, now living in Canterbury and a graduate of the University of Kent. I've always had a passion for singing and acting.

I've appeared in more than a dozen shows including at the Marlowe and Gulbenkian theatres. During the day I work as a teaching assistant and divide my free time between the gym, show rehearsals and singing lessons.

Q How did you first get involved in acting and singing?

A I come from a musical background. My Dad's a singer and plays the piano and my uncle plays cello in the BBC Symphony Orchestra. Many others of my family are involved in either music or performance.

I learned to play the violin at the age of seven, followed by the saxophone and also went to dance classes, but I became more interested in singing at secondary school.

I joined both Ramsgate and Canterbury Operatic Societies at 17 and auditioned for the part of Hodel in Fiddler On The Roof at the Marlowe. I also later joined Herne Bay Operatic Society.

Q What shows have you done in the past?

A Besides Fiddler On The Roof I've had leading roles in The Mikado, The Pirates of Penzance, Barnum, Annie Get Your Gun and Titanic The Musical.

I've also appeared in Fame, Me and My Girl and The Hot Mikado, together with compilation shows of the music of Gershwin and Rodgers and Hammerstein.

Q What would you say has been your favourite role to date?

A It would have to be when I played a third-class Irish passenger, Kate McGowan, in Titanic The Musical. The show was held in November 2008 and was one of the last to be staged at the old Marlowe before the redevelopment began.

Everything about it was different to what I'd done before. There was a large cast with elaborate sets and costumes. We were conscious of recreating something which was based on a real-life human tragedy and our style and approach had to be sensitive towards that. The music was very inspiring.

Q Tell us about your latest show, The Pajama Game

A It's a love story set in 1950s America, where employees at the Sleepite Pajama factory are demanding a wage rise. The songs are incredibly catchy including well-known numbers such as Hey There, Small Talk, Steam Heat and Hernando's Hideaway.

Doris Day starred in the original film version and more recently it has been revived on Broadway. I play the cameo role of Poopsie, a factory girl and a union activist.

Q What advice would you say to those who would like to pursue a career in acting or singing?

A Get involved with local theatre companies and be proactive. Some people overlook this, but it's important to get experience wherever you can.

Q What is it you hope to achieve in future?

A I'm taking regular singing lessons and hope to record an album featuring a mix of contemporary and jazz songs this summer. I'm also looking out for roles.

Q What's the best way to prepare before you take to the stage?

A I recommend sucking on half a lemon before going on stage because it helps to clear the throat, but the most important thing is a vocal warm-up and breathing exercises.

Q How can people find out more about the show and book tickets?

A The Pajama Game is on at the Gulbenkian Theatre all this week with the last performance on Saturday evening, when there's also a matinee on the same day. Tickets are from £10 and can be booked on 01227 769075 or online at www.thegulbenkian.co.uk.

FUNDRAISERS: The Red Wheelies

Group are wheelie ready for challenge

A MOBILITY scooter formation display team is to raise money for charity by completing the 150 mile North Downs Walk in their buggies.

The Red Wheelies are all multiple sclerosis sufferers, yet last year overcame their limitations by traveling the 84 mile length of Hadrian's Wall for charity.

But this year they are to face their biggest challenge ever to raise funds for the Kent Multiple Sclerosis Therapy Centre in Canterbury.

And they now have the go-ahead thanks to a £5,000 award to cover the costs of the trip from Grassroots Grants, administered by the Kent Community Foundation.

Jackie Weeden, Red Wheelies team leader, said: "We have been planning the next venture for a while but were unsure if costs were going to be covered."

"Now we have funding it is great we are able to go ahead all cylinders firing and raise as much money as possible for the therapy centre."

"We are thankful for all the support we continue to receive and just want to prove multiple sclerosis does not have to mean you cannot achieve great things."

The ladies will be using Quingo mobility scooters to travel the 150 miles from Winchester to Canterbury via Guildford, Dorking and Rochester.

Cancer mum's message to help save lives

■ BY STEVE KNIGHT

A CANCER victim who mistook her symptoms for the menopause is urging other women to ensure they are not putting themselves at risk.

Dianna Fry, 58, from Canterbury, had a hysterectomy and six cycles of chemotherapy after being diagnosed with the ovarian form of the killer disease.

However, the mum-of-three admits she was lucky to survive after ignoring the initial symptoms.

She said: "I remember feeling really bloated and suffering from severe bouts of abdominal pain.

"I was falling asleep in my singing class and feeling full after just one mouthful of food, but I really thought it was just that time of life."

"It is probably thanks to my cousin – who had cancer of the colon and had been urging me to have a colonoscopy – and a very young registrar that I am here now."

Mrs Fry eventually discovered she had two small masses on her left ovary, and in June 2007 she underwent an operation to have her womb and ovaries removed.

Three weeks later doctors broke the news that tests on the masses had shown they were cancerous, and Mrs Fry was started on a six-cycle course of chemotherapy. She is now in remission.

Mrs Fry said: "As with all cancer survivors I am very aware that my time is possibly shorter than most people, but I have come to realise how fortunate I am to have such wonderful support and treatment."

"I really would urge all women to keep a diary of their symptoms, and if they spot the common ones to go straight to their GP."

Ovarian cancer is the fifth most common cancer in women in the UK, affecting about 6,600 people every year.

This month is Ovarian Cancer Awareness Month.

Andrew Scott-Clark, deputy director of public health for NHS Eastern and Coastal Kent, said: "The good news is that if detected in its

LUCKY: Dianna Fry was diagnosed with ovarian cancer after initially mistaking the symptoms for the menopause early stages, women have a 90 per cent chance of surviving.

"The common symptoms are persistent stomach pain, increased abdominal size and persistent bloating."

RIGHT CONNECTION: Good broadband speeds are essential, not a luxury, for businesses in rural areas

Rural firms will need cut of the broadband cash

■ BY STEVE KNIGHT

BUSINESSES based in rural areas must get help to improve internet connection speeds or face losing out to foreign competition.

Rural campaigners warned living standards will fall unless they are awarded a slice of £1 billion funding for broadband internet.

Andrew Bowles, chairman of the Rural Forum for the South East, said about half of all small and medium-sized businesses in the region are based in rural areas, but often suffer from slow broadband connections or none at all.

The UK is ranked a lowly 31 out of 66 European countries in terms of internet speed. So, the Government is setting up the Next Generation Access Fund to improve connections.

Mr Bowles said: "It's embarrassing and disastrous that the UK is so far down the league table and there are big implications for the British economy and jobs."

"It's becoming very difficult to run small businesses in rural areas without faster internet speeds and is forcing people to open new offices in towns, increasing their carbon footprint because they are driving further than they normally would."

"It's also having a knock-on effect on the rural communities, where before businesses would use the local post office or perhaps take clients out to lunch at the village pub."

"There's even a report that says the GCSE results of children who live in areas with inadequate internet access are 25 per cent lower, on average."

According to research by the Commission for Rural Communities, more than a quarter of people who live outside towns and cities do not have basic broadband, or can only get it at slow speeds.

Majority

Last week Virgin announced it will begin to roll out its new super-fast 100mb broadband service across the UK from the end of this year, after testing speeds of double that figure in Ashford.

Roger House, chairman of the Kent and Medway branch of the Federation of Small Businesses, agreed that for the majority of its 6,500 members, fast internet was essential.

He said: "Broadband is not an added luxury to today's small businesses but an essential service similar to utilities such as gas and electricity."

Last week the Government announced the formation of the Broadband Delivery UK body, which will be responsible for spending the £1bn fund to deliver faster internet speeds to 90 per cent of the country by 2017.

'Don't miss swine flu vaccinations'

PREGNANT women and others eligible for the swine flu vaccine are being warned of the dangers of turning down the jab.

Since the beginning of the outbreak in April, last year, there have been 22 confirmed swine flu-related deaths in the South East and 1,529 hospital admissions.

But despite the number of cases dropping steadily across the UK, the NHS in Kent says people in the at-risk groups should not assume they are no longer in the line of fire.

Catherine Plowright – the county's acting critical care network manager – said:

"Having worked for years in intensive care I am used to working with very sick people."

"What has struck me as different with people suffering from swine flu is the length of time people are taking to improve and move out of intensive care."

The swine flu vaccination programme began last October, with the jab being given to those at greatest risk first.

Anybody in the at-risk groups who has not yet been vaccinated should contact their local GP for more information on when the vaccination clinics are.

'Too early' to judge success of high-speed line, says minister

RAILWAYS minister Chris Mole says it is too early to judge the benefits of the new high-speed train service in Kent.

A new timetable launched to coincide with the start of High Speed 1 in early December has been heavily criticised by commuters, who say the level of service on mainline trains is now worse than ever despite the promise of more choice and less overcrowding.

Many claim the Southeastern schedule has instead led to longer journey times to London, a reduction in trains to Victoria and Cannon Street, and more delays and cancellations.

However, Mr Mole told MPs at Westminster Hall last Wednesday that it can take "some years" for a new market to reach its full potential.

He added: "That is not meant to imply the service is not being monitored rigorously, but it does mean that snap judgements will not be made about the success of the new services."

"Inevitably there have been changes to the timetable affecting other services but it is early days to judge the final pattern of usage and satisfaction in Kent."

Mr Mole made his point at an adjournment debate secured by North Thanet Tory MP Roger Gale, who is supporting two petitions against the new schedule signed by more than 1,000 commuters.

Japanese visitors share their culture

JAPANESE student teachers have visited a school in Canterbury to observe lessons in exchange for an afternoon of Japanese culture.

The Simon Langton Girls' Grammar School hosted the visitors last week.

Head of modern languages, David Stalley, said: "The student teachers are attending a short vacation course at Chaucer College and wanted to see our outstanding teaching. We are gaining fame as a training school."

The Japanese student teachers spent the morning observing lessons and taught Langton girls beginners' Japanese, origami and calligraphy during the afternoon.

National success for university students

ENTERPRISE and law students from Canterbury have both got through to finals of national competitions.

Second year jurisprudence undergraduates from Christ Church University have won a place in the finals of the Negotiation Competition of England and Wales which will take place in London on Saturday, March 27.

Enterprise students from the university have made it through to the finals of the IBM University Business Challenge.

Undergraduates have seen off 260 teams to make it into the top 10 and will compete for the top spot at the IBM headquarters in London on March 19.

Academy's record intake a cause for celebration

■ BY JENNY ARMSTRONG

THE Spires Academy in Sturry is celebrating a record number of student applications this year.

Usually running with spare capacity, this year 118 places of the 120 available for Year 7 entrants in 2010 have been filled.

When the school first opened in 2007 it had 292 students, but this year there will be 460, an increase of 58 per cent.

Janette Kitchenham, who supports new students, said: "The fact that we have a record number of parents putting Spires Academy as their first choice of secondary school for their children is fantastic news."

Supportive

"Parents and students are recognising our strengths and have chosen us as the right school for them."

"With our individual approach and specialisms we are a unique academy where students can flourish in the supportive environment that we offer."

The academy's leader, Helen Foster, said: "I am absolutely thrilled with the figures out this week for our Year 7 choices."

"It is great to hear our local families have trusted Spires Academy and know it is the right choice for their child."

"I believe passionately in providing a 21st century education for a 21st century child."

"Our recent successes have proven that Spires students are leading the way in championing our approach to learning."

INDIVIDUAL APPROACH: Janette Kitchenham with some of the pupils at the Spires Academy in Sturry

A Spires Academy spokesman has said it is one of the best schools in the Canterbury district for value-added results.

She said: "The attainments of students entering the academy in Year 7 are taken as baseline and their expected GCSE results predicted. Students are regularly exceeding their predicted levels, which is a measure of how much value the academy is adding."

"Our score on this measure put the Spires Academy in the top three per cent across the country."

Writing a character reference for Gale

Mrs Beatty of Herne Bay should not be too critical of MP Roger Gale for providing a character reference for the former Mayor of Margate, Edwin Watt-Ruffell, who was up before the judge on an animal cruelty charge.

Loyalty to one's friends is an admirable trait, even if, as in Mr Gale's case it has left him open to ridicule due to the fact that throughout his parliamentary career he has been calling for harsher penalties for those convicted of animal cruelty, now it seems he is writing references for them.

Mr Gale also showed great loyalty to his colleagues Jonathon Aitken and Derek Conway, which it transpired proved to be misguided which does suggest that Mrs Beatty has a point in questioning his judgement.

What is not in doubt is that his constituents do not share his views as to the character of messrs Aitken, Conway and Watt-Ruffell.

Way council wastes money leaves me cold

I have just had a delivery of recycling bags delivered from Canterbury council.

I stood and watched when they were delivering these bags to properties down my road.

They are too lazy to put them by your front door. From the pavement they throw them towards the doors, and if they happen to roll underneath a car parked on the drive, then that's where they stay. So the owner won't know they have had a delivery, until they use their car!

Also the new design leaves much to be desired. If you put something in them that happens to have a sharp corner, then you will have to use another one over it, using two bags as the quality is so inferior.

Reading in the paper some time ago that CCC intends to charge households £2 once they have used their quota, I can understand why the new ones are so inferior!

You will be using two bags instead of one every time you put sharp objects in them, therefore, you will have to purchase more.

Not only is the Council Tax going up well over the rate of inflation, but we are paying for CCC and

TALK TIME

HELEN PORTER

Helen Porter talks about her health and beauty clinic Evolution Skin Studios which has recently opened in Burgate, Canterbury

What services do you offer?

We offer the basic beauty treatments, and we have a nail technician. We have regular tattooing as well as cosmetic and medical tattooing. We have a plastic surgeon, Mr Davidson, who offers botox, fillers and chemical peels. He offers consultations from here for breast surgery, facelifts and other surgery. We also have osteopathy and acupuncture, massage and tattoo removal. Anything to do with skin and bodies, we do it.

Why does the city need your clinic?

Because there isn't one clinic that has everything under one roof. You can come here and know that you have a complete package. We have specialists who are top of their field in everything that they do.

What is medical tattooing?

Medical tattooing is to camouflage people's scars or reconstruction. The technique is very similar to normal tattooing but we specialise in working with scar tissue.

KCC to go off on weekend breaks at our expense, spending thousands of pounds of our money in the process! It is disgusting.

I am a pensioner and registered disabled, my pension is £369 per month. I don't get any benefits of any sort. But what do they do for the pensioners. All they do is close various places saying they are short of funds. Invest our money here in the UK, not in Icelandic banks!

Speaking out over antisocial behaviour

Over 900 fighting/dangerous dogs were detained last year in London.

A case of a London teenager, brought down by a gang's attack dog before he was stabbed to death has been reported. Dogs are now commonly used as weapons and to intimidate. I believe old people in care homes need their pets – otherwise the downward spiral of unsuitable and inadequate public housing will continue unabated.

But there are all kinds of dogs and uncouth owners as I responded to the blog about dogs, which are becoming a nuisance to others as I find my drive and front garden can be used as a dog toilet. The last person I tackled who used to use my ivy as a urinating stop was too embarrassed to reply and has now moved, but others are just as bad.

My opinion is that Carter and Gilroy ought to have been removed and summarily dismissed for their lack of due diligence (£millions lost

Facts dispel myths over speed cameras

This year marks the end of the Government's current Road Safety Strategy, launched in 2000, which set out to cut the number of people killed or seriously injured (KSI) in road crashes by 40 per cent within 10 years.

The Kent & Medway Safety Camera Partnership, which is responsible for the operation of safety cameras within Kent and Medway, has surpassed that target, reducing KSIs by 63 per cent across all of our safety camera sites since the Partnership was formed in 2002.

Yet despite this achievement, there are still those who believe that safety cameras are a waste of money and, worse still, actually cause more crashes than they prevent.

This is, unfortunately, one of many myths that have grown up around safety cameras over the past few years, perpetuated by negative stories in the media.

The reality is since their introduction, safety cameras have consistently proved to be a successful method of reducing casualties on the roads. In Ashford, for example, the number of KSIs dropped by 40 per cent between 2006 and 2008 compared to the three years prior to cameras.

Critics of safety cameras have argued that they are dangerous because they encourage erratic braking and acceleration from drivers trying to avoid being 'caught', or that they distract drivers by making them constantly take their eyes off the road to check their speed.

I'd like to address both these points. Firstly, a major two-year Department for Transport study of safety cameras across six areas demonstrated that they do not increase crashes by leading to abrupt braking. Drivers are given ample warning that there's a safety camera ahead and the simple fact is that if they are already driving at the correct speed, they won't have any reason to suddenly brake when they approach a camera.

Secondly, it's not reasonable to claim drivers are forced to watch their speedometers rather than the road ahead. Competent drivers should be able to check and maintain their speed.

When drivers use rear and side view mirrors and check at junctions and roundabouts in order to give way. These all require drivers to concentrate on sections of the road other than those straight ahead and there is no evidence to suggest that such short and temporary diversions of concentration are a safety risk.

If you'd like to know more about what the Kent & Medway Safety Camera Partnership does visit our new-look website, www.kmscp.org.

in Iceland despite the warning email? They are unfit for high office and I second Colin Davis of Woodchurch letter for Gilroy to give back his £200,000 goodbye gift, and the £12,000 he claimed for unused holiday. Why is he getting away with his poor management and financial negligence? Carter shows ill-judgement at best with his crazy Geldof TV and health telephone line, when do we get a break from these dopes in high places? Cllr Mark Reckless is correct, council taxpayers are being ripped off by the whole public/privatised partnerships of what to me is no better than a police and militarised state. I am a peace-seeking patriot, and rue the day party politicians got above themselves and drove disillusioned voters into the arms of BNIP/UKIP, none of whom will bring better conditions for unfairly-treated VIPs like my postman.

Somehow, gross insensitivity and inconsideration are on the rise. What about the lady who was violently shoved onto the railway line at Farningham when she objected to him smoking? She has been unable to return to work since recovering physically from the attack. Increasingly I believe we are being constrained and restrained by our better judgement to staying silent, or looking the other way when antisocial acts take place in our presence or under our noses. Regarding the suicide leap by three asylum seekers in Glasgow, my husband and I would offer a home to a single refugee on a temporary basis. How many lonely, older people could also gain help and companionship from a refugee lodger? I know one old man who has a Gurkha family living with him. Their children call him grandad, he helps them with their English language and any bureaucratic problems. Why cannot we open our minds, hearts and homes? For me I could share my home. Living communally by choice in our own homes is not the worst option for any of us, especially compared to sheltered housing.

Taxpayers are on expensive route

Just to add a bit more to Roger Arnold's letter about the government, via the EU, spending millions of pounds on roads mainly in the old Soviet Bloc countries – we are also giving away another £1.5 million to help so-called road safety projects in Africa and Asia. These have already benefited from a £3.5 million funding from the Department for International Development, for such purposes.

So British drivers with ripped tyres, bent wheels and damaged

Hospitals could face strike action

A UNION is threatening strike action by some staff at three of the county's main hospitals over pay rates and employment conditions.

Results of the consultative ballot at GMB union are expected in two weeks and means porters, cleaners and catering staff may stage a walk-out.

Hospitals that could be hit are the William Harvey Hospital in Ashford, the Queen Elizabeth Queen Mother Hospital in Margate and the Kent and Canterbury Hospital in Canterbury.

If a strike is agreed, the union claims around 650 members of staff will not turn up for work and hospitals will be forced to close parts of their facilities.

Inconvenience

But a spokesman from the East Kent Hospitals University NHS Foundation Trust said the number of strikers would be lower, as many ancillary workers do not belong to the union.

"A strike may cause inconvenience to other staff, but it would have no affect on patients," he said.

The union is balloting over the 2006 Agenda for Change agreement, which looks to improve national pay rates and terms and conditions of employment, including holiday entitlement and unsocial hours pay.

But GMB's Mr Macklin said the union is unhappy with the savings targets and offer and has taken a consultative ballot of its members – mostly porter staff at Kent and Canterbury Hospital – to see if they want to strike.

He said: "The Trust was awarded Foundation status over a year ago, but has yet to implement the national agreement in full and to pay the back-pay."

Measures to stop vulnerable being victims

SOCIAL services chiefs say protection of vulnerable adults is a top priority.

The pledge comes in the wake of high-profile investigations into the deaths of mum Fiona Pilkington and vulnerable Manchester man David Askew.

Desperate Fiona, 38, killed herself and her disabled daughter Francecca Hardwick, 18, in Leicestershire in 2007 after authorities ignored her cries for help following years of abuse by a gang of thugs.

David, 64, who had a mental age of just ten, was "tormented to death" by youths. They harassed him for more than a decade.

Officials at Kent County Council – named as one of the top three local authorities in the country for its safeguarding procedures – are determined the same will never happen here.

A conference at Kent Police headquarters involving KCC, the NHS and a number of independent agencies, looked at a selection of programmes currently being undertaken to strengthen measures to protect vulnerable adults.

■ BY MARIJKE COX

Cllr Graham Gibbons, cabinet member for adult social care, said: "All councils in the UK were made to analyse what they were doing to ensure procedures where in place to tackle the issue.

"But we were already working on this. For KCC and Medway Council this has been a key priority for many years.

"Abuse can come in many different forms, for example financial – it doesn't necessarily have to be physical abuse. We're working hard to show that it is not tolerated here."

He added that where child abuse can often be detected by schools and health workers, for vulnerable adults it is not always so easy.

"Abuse is not just in a residential home or a day centre. It could be at work, college or at hospital – abuse can happen in any setting," he said.

Oliver Mills, managing director of adult social services and chairman of the Safeguarding of Vulnerable Adults Board for Kent and Medway, said raising awareness is key.

TRAGIC: Fiona Pilkington who killed herself and her daughter, inset, after years of abuse by gangs of teens

"Kent and Medway have had effective safeguarding in place for some time, but we must always continue to review this and see how we can improve," he said.

"We have a set of procedures in place and we work with different agencies, such as the police, the NHS and lots of independent organisations, to ensure vulnerable adults are protected.

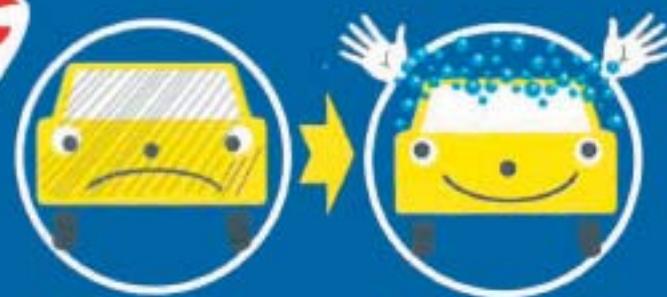

"If we do learn that someone is being abused, for example financially or sexually, then an investigation is launched and this can sometimes lead to prosecution."

Mr Mills agreed with Cllr Gibbons that it is often harder to detect abuse with adults than children, but said a third of vulnerable people are receiving social care services – making it easier to identify.

Even if you don't like dogs, new legislation proposals to control owners should worry you

We should paws for thought over even more ridiculous laws

PLANS were announced last week for compulsory insurance of your dog in case it bites someone and, probably, micro-chipping.

That's about £600 a year under Government plans to review the Dangerous Dogs Act.

It comes hot on the heels of a proposal to charge £60 for a competence test before you can even own a dog anyway. And that is an excellent example of more useless state interference.

Do not let it go ahead – it won't change anything. The responsible remain responsible – the scumbags will always be scumbags.

It's simply a case of another state curtailment on our civil liberties for no good reason at all.

Once again we have a knee-jerk reaction by MPs – who I believe have too little to do of any consequence since Europe makes the big decisions – following an isolated incident involving a sink estate toerag and his devil dog.

Twenty years ago the poorly thought out Dangerous Dogs Act was rushed through in the same way. Like the Foxhunting Ban, if this latest test over competence becomes law, who is going to ensure people obey it?

It may be an excuse I suppose for another round of made-up-jobs with councils (Dog Licence Enforcement Officers wanted, £25,000 a year, recruitment section, The Guardian), but surely it is time people made a stand.

Dogs are often unpredictable and there are undoubtedly some vicious mutts that should never be allowed out of a cage.

I do not own a dog nor do I have any wish to do so, however if you do, then that's fine by me.

I don't care whether it's for companionship or because a dog is the only thing that shows you love, or simply that you were conned by your kids and now you have to take it walking in the rain – if you want a dog, get on with it.

So long as you ensure it does not inconvenience me, then you, like everybody else, should be free to do as you wish. And that should apply to so many things in Britain: live and let live. But our freedoms are eroded at every turn.

I genuinely want our Government to ensure that enough time and money is spent minimising the risk of foreigners carrying out terrorist atrocities in the name of their god. But there should be no place in this once genuinely free country of ours for busybodies and the self-righteous to impose their view of right and wrong to everyday life with stupid laws and regulations.

I write this a little smugly, since I warned dog owners a few years ago they were set to be the next social group to be picked on and marginalised after smokers had been crushed.

That's done now, so it's you dog owners.

The anger over dog fouling fills letters pages and see the response to this blog on our website... people don't care about being bitten, they just want to avoid dog poop on their trainers.

So, now the smoker has been all but eliminated from society, the politicians were on the lookout for minority targets they despise – and dog owners are on the list, alongside the overweight, as an easy group to be picked on and bullied.

So, even if you hate dogs, despise foxhunters, and shun smokers, do not think that if you let the latest ridiculous proposal become law that you are striking a blow for an improved quality of life for yourself. It's only a matter of time before a new law is aimed squarely at you.

Top to toe treatments at new clinic

■ Evolution

DO you love the skin you're in? If not, a revolutionary skin clinic in the centre of Canterbury promises to send you out with the face – and body – you've always dreamed of.

Evolution is a new concept in promoting skin and body treatments – probably the only clinic of its kind in the UK.

Founded by Helen Porter and John Davison, it offers clients everything from facial and skin care services to facelifts, 'boob jobs' and other cosmetic treatments.

The clinic, at 20 Burgate, also offers safe and hygienic tattooing and tattoo removal. Helen has gained international recognition for her techniques – which can also be used to apply semi-permanent make-up – and works on scar concealment and rebuilding patients' bodies and confidence following major operations, such as mastectomies.

John Davison, an accredited plastic surgeon with more than 20 years' experience, specialises in breast enhancement and reduction, as well as nose and ear re-alignment, browlifts, tummy tucks and chemical peels.

If you're looking for a new image via less radical means, Evolution offers a range of de-stressing body wraps and scrubs, Swedish massage and reflexology starting from only £25, complementary therapies such as osteopathy, acupuncture and cranial massage and tinting, shaping, waxing and nailcare.

Evolution is open six days a week and by appointment on Sundays, with late nights on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

TOP TIPS

Village Hotel

Three hours after exercise, you should consume a regular meal containing protein to continue the muscle rebuilding process. Do not 'treat' yourself to sweets or alcohol as your muscles will be crying out for protein.

Evolution

Don't wait until you've got lines and wrinkles to consider Botox. Because it works by paralysing your muscles, it restricts your facial movement and consequently the development of wrinkles.

Damon's latest action hero faces a crisis of conscience in Iraq

■ BY DAMON SMITH

WHEN American and British forces withdraw completely from Iraq – a military strategy which seems unthinkable seven years into the campaign – the lasting legacy won't be peace and democracy.

It will be a deep-rooted suspicion that the infamous weapons of mass destruction (WMDs), the supposed justification for the invasion, never existed.

The recent Iraq inquiry, chaired by Sir John Chilcot, provided no firm answers.

Award-winning British filmmaker Paul Greengrass and actor Matt Damon, the driving forces behind The Bourne Supremacy and The Bourne Ultimatum, offer one scenario in this riveting thriller set.

blitzkrieg

Based on the book Imperial Life In The Emerald City: Inside Iraq's Green Zone by journalist Rajiv Chandrasekaran, Green Zone is a breathless two hours of adrenaline-pumping action and political manoeuvring that places as much emphasis on emotionally-charged dialogue as the set pieces.

The film opens with a deafening bang on March 19, 2003 in Baghdad as Saddam Hussein's trusted general, Al Rawi (Naor), flees his headquarters in the midst of an Allied blitzkrieg.

Four weeks later, US Army warrant officer Roy Miller (Damon) and his team careen through the war-torn capital on the hunt for WMDs. Yet again, they draw a blank and Miller voices his frustrations, suspecting bogus intelligence.

A tip-off from a disgruntled local, Freddy (Abdalla), leads Miller and his crew to a meeting of Saddam's high-ranking advisors, including Al Rawi.

The general escapes, but another man is apprehended and Miller uses Freddy as a translator to interrogate the suspect about a notebook in his possession.

PASSIONATE: Matt Damon as Roy Miller, a soldier with a conscience in Green Zone

"He says the book has names and locations of El Rawi's safe houses," reveals Freddy.

Returning to base, Miller bypasses scheming Pentagon official Clark Poundstone (Kinnear) and his minion Major Briggs (Isaacs), and delivers the book to local CIA chief Gordon Brown (Gleeson), who asks for discretion.

"I thought we were all on the same side," replies Miller. "Don't be naive," mocks Brown.

Green Zone is distinguished by Greengrass's tour-de-force direction, galloping through the streets of Baghdad with handheld cameras so we remain uncomfortably close to Miller as he risks his life for a country he was entrusted to tear apart.

There is no better director of action sequences and we really feel like we are ducking for cover from enemy fire as pyrotechnic mayhem erupts around the cast.

Damon delivers a passionate performance as a soldier with a conscience, who doesn't understand the full extent of the conspiracy.

Kinnear and Gleeson relish their roles as duplicitous political pawns, and Abdalla carries sympathy as the Iraqi interloper, enraged by the arrogance of his so-called American saviours.

"It's not for you to decide what happens here," Freddy tells Miller.

We are certain his words will fall on deaf ears, because the West knows best. Doesn't it?

UNCOVERED: No surprises in Andrew Rawnsley's programme on Cameron

YOUR TV REVIEW DISPATCHES - CAMERON UNCOVERED: Channel 4, Monday, March 8

POLITICAL journalist Andrew Rawnsley has been making waves in Westminster recently with his apparent outing of the Prime Minister as a bully.

No sooner had his latest 800-page tome been released than he was on every peak-time news and discussion programme debating the various claims and counterclaims made for and against his findings.

Therefore it seemed canny and timely that he was recruited by Channel 4's Dispatches team (or was it the other way round?) to front their programme on Britain's would-be leader, weeks before a General Election.

A nifty name such as Cameron Uncovered promised to give us a fresh insight into someone who we already see on our screens and read about every day of the week.

But what lured me in was the sight of a Sunday newspaper headline which revealed the show's juiciest content.

■ BY JAMES ALEXANDRE

Namely, that the Tory leader's wife Samantha may well have voted for Labour in the past and might not even place a tick next to her husband's own party come May.

In the end, the extraordinary claim by shadow arts spokesman Ed Vaizey passed by almost without notice.

What stuck in the mind was his awkward phrasing when referring to Cameron, saying: "Until you've got a chicken in place who understands the modernising agenda, you're not going to lay the modernising egg."

Rawnsley didn't challenge him on which came first, but more interviews followed with Chancellor-in-waiting and long-time friend George Osborne, who dismissed comparisons of their relationship with the embittered one of Blair and Brown.

Several references were made to Cameron's own background in marketing and PR, although one of New Labour's own architects Peter Mandelson came out on the attack, bringing up the former's membership of the notorious Bullingdon Club.

Then the scene quickly cut to shadow education spokesman Michael Gove, who said Mandelson was a Communist Party member in his student days and had travelled to Cuba to hear Che Guevara speak.

All of which took place with Rawnsley in the hot seat, inviting audience members to draw their own conclusions and hoping his own contribution will bring itself to bear come polling day.

Shooting star's chance to shine

ANGELOS EPITHEMIOU

 Wednesday, March 17
 Orange Street Music Club, Canterbury

A TRUE Shooting Star visits Canterbury tonight for an evening of rib-tickling comedy.

The headline act of this week's regular comedy night will be Angelos Epithemiou, now a familiar face on Reeves and Mortimer's surreal BBC panel show, Shooting Stars.

After being hand-picked from the club circuit last year, Epithemiou is now a household name and a popular panellist on the highly successful show.

Dan Renton Skinner's comic creation is a down-at-heel owner of a roadside cafe whose deadpan delivery has audiences in stitches. Sometimes billed as 'anti-comedy', Skinner's aloof and bemused style has won countless fans because he acts as the perfect foil to Reeves and Mortimer's often frantic comedy.

Epithemiou arrived on Shooting Stars for the first time, with his ever-present carrier bag in hand, after Mortimer spotted him in a comedy club last year. He immediately saw the potential in this bespectacled character with greasy hair and dubious taste in anoraks.

Since then, his appearances on Shooting Stars have been a huge success, making him one of the most in-demand stand-ups in the country.

Angelos Epithemiou – pictured with his Shooting Stars co-stars – is not Skinner's first or only comic creation, as the comedian has appeared in many other stage shows, television series and even films. As a member of the Dutch Elm Conservatoire, he honed the craft of sketches and has appeared in the stage production Mr Winchester, the Benders and the Warp.

Television appearances include sitcoms such as My Family, The Office Christmas specials and Coupling, along with sketch shows like the Katy Brand Show, Armstrong & Miller and Headcases. Other appearances include Mike Bassett: Manager; The Only Boy For Me, Swag, Haunted London, Seven Second Delay, Home Time, Victorian Empire and Pinky & Perky.

Comedy fans should not miss this chance to see Skinner perform as the bemused Epithemiou in a relatively intimate venue, as he is sure to go on and become a big star.

Shooting Stars was first broadcast in 1993 and made a triumphant return to television screens last year after an absence of several years. With its madcap hosts and bizarre challenges, the show soon became renowned for showing established celebrities in a slightly different light. Television presenter Mark Lamarr and high-brow novelist Will Self both reached new audiences with their roles as the deadpan team captains, while Ulrika Jonsson has been a permanent fixture as a team captain from the beginning of the show.

Vic Reeves – whose real name is Jim Moir – has been highlighting his artistic prowess in recent years, but he first rose to fame as a highly individual comedian. The former pig farmer and factory inspector landed his own television show, Vic Reeves' Big Night Out, and joined forces with former solicitor Bob Mortimer, creating a partnership that would still be going strong more than 20 years later.

They went on to achieve hit singles with cover versions of Dizzy and I'm A Believer, while giving their own unique take on the sketch show format with The Smell of Reeves and Mortimer. Major mainstream success came with Shooting Stars, co-starring Matt Lucas of Little Britain fame, who appeared as score-keeper George Dawes long before his own sketch show made him a star.

Angelos Epithemiou can be seen at Orange Street Music Club at 8.30pm. Tickets cost £6 and can be booked by calling the club on 01227 760801 or visiting the website at www.orangestreetmusic.com.

Saturday, March 20, Winter Gardens, Margate

DANCING queens will be in their element when Björn Again presents an evening of Abba-mania.

Rod Stephen's tour gives fans the chance to hear all their favourite Abba songs performed live, including hits from Mamma Mia. The voice of legendary DJ Tony Blackburn can also be heard introducing the hits of 1988, the year in which Björn Again was formed.

Stephen is a musician and director from Australia who decided to leave his previous career in metallurgical research to create a show that captured the best of 1970s music and fashion. Abba were the perfect inspiration for this show which is considered a satirical parody, rather than a tribute.

The show starts at 7.30pm and tickets cost £17.50/£16.50. Book online at www.margatewintergardens.co.uk or call the box office on 01843 292795/296111.

TRIVIUM

Monday, March 22, Leas Cliff Hall, Folkestone

GET ready to head into the Mouth of Hell when Trivium returns to Folkestone next week. When the American heavy metal band played headline tours in the UK back in 2005 and 2006, they received a warm welcome from music fans in this country. They resolved to return and have finally made good on their promise, visiting the Leas Cliff Hall as part of the 16-date Into the Mouth of Hell Tour.

Guests are to be confirmed, but fans can definitely look forward to an evening of fantastic rock as Trivium reminds them why the band was such a hit last time.

"The UK was the first place in the world to truly embrace Trivium and make us feel like we had a home away from home on stage," said singer-guitarist Matthew Heafy.

"It's been a long time since we've done a full-blown, multi-date headlining UK tour and man, have we missed it."

Doors open at 7pm and tickets cost £16.50. To book call the box office on 0844 847 1776 or visit www.leascliffhall.org.uk.

TOM LEWIS

Friday, March 9, White Lion Hotel, Tenterden

SONGS of the sea are performed by one of the folk world's best entertainers when Tom Lewis returns to Tenterden.

With more than 40 years' experience, Lewis is now a highly acclaimed exponent of nautical songs. Although he emigrated to the mountains of British Columbia in 1983, Lewis has his roots in the UK's folk tradition.

Born in Belfast, he moved with his family to Gloucester as a child and joined the Royal Navy as an engineering apprentice at 16. His interest in folk music and sea songs was sparked by his discovery of various folk singers while based in Scotland and they continued to have a strong influence on him.

Having established himself as a popular folk circuit entertainer while still in the Navy, he moved to Canada upon finishing his service and set out on the road with his wife Lyn. Twenty years on, he is still delighting listeners all over the world.

The Tenterden Folk Club concert will be held in The Saddlery at 8pm and tickets cost £6 in advance or £7 on the door. To book call 01233 626805 or email info@tenterdenfolkfestival.org.uk.

MAMER

Wednesday, March 24, Gulbenkian Theatre, Canterbury

INSPIRED by the wilds of China's Xinjiang province, Mamer's haunting music blends tradition with Western influences.

Hailed as one of China's most original and influential young artists, Mamer brings the past and future together in his highly-acclaimed music. His songs of the grassland have their roots firmly in traditional Kazakh folk song and dombra music, yet he also infuses them with elements of Western folk, rock and virtuoso performances on a number of instruments.

Now a cult figure on Beijing's underground scene, Mamer grew up in the strong musical tradition of Kazakh nomadic culture, yet developed a love of bands like The Doors, Yes and Pink Floyd. With his debut album, Eagle, he confirms his position as 'the father of Chinagrass' – honest, simple music that honours its roots and continues to evolve.

Using traditional instruments and lyrical, ambient sounds, Mamer breathes life into ancient tunes.

The concert starts at 7.45pm and tickets cost £10 or £5 for the first 200 Encore! Gulbenkian members. To book call 01227 769075 or visit www.gulbenkiantheatre.co.uk.

The show can be seen at Temple Ewell Village Hall on Thursday; St Nicholas Church in New Romney on Friday; the Ellen Terry Barn Theatre at Smallhythe Place in Tenterden from Thursday, March 25 to Saturday, March 27 and the Theatre Royal Margate on Sunday, March 28.

ENCHANTING: Rude Mechanical Theatre's production of the Brother Grimm's The Musicians of Bremen

Theatre group brings Grimm folk tales to life

FAIRYTALES by the Brothers Grimm are played out with charm and flair in The Musicians of Bremen.

On Sunday the Rude Mechanical Theatre Company will be giving a performance of their acclaimed family show at Astley Hall in Maidstone, the headquarters of Kent Music.

Suitable for children aged from three to nine and their families, this enchanting production is now on tour for a second year due to huge public demand.

When old donkey Bruno decides to run away, he is joined by a motley crew of friends with their own problems. Alberta the fox hound is scared of foxes, while the cat Cornelia is frightened of mice. Along with the noisy and magnificent rooster Fritz, the group decide to form a jazz band and become known as the Musicians of Bremen.

The show follows their adventures as they come across a posse of robbers and an abandoned baby, while learning about friendship, loyalty, courage, ambition, growing old and triumph over adversity.

The performance starts at 2.30pm and tickets cost £6/£4 or £16 for families of four. To book call 01622 358439 or visit www.therudemechanicaltheatre.co.uk.

Festival season is on its way!

HEADLINE ACT: Reverend and the Makers have been confirmed at Sellindge Festival

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

LIVE music fans arise from your snow-induced slumber.

The arctic conditions have subsided and the balmy days of spring and summer are within touching distance.

And with the sunshine comes a plethora of now established and much-loved music festivals.

These include the family-focused Lounge on the Farm (Canterbury), Hop Farm Festival (conveniently situated at the Hop Farm, Paddock Wood) and the Sellindge Festival (near Ashford).

Dates aside, details are still sketchy to say the least, with festival organisers working around the clock to fill their line-ups with the best of Kent's up-and-coming acts, chart toppers as well as the odd genuine legend.

Sellindge Festival bosses have confirmed a number of top bands on their website, with the cream of the crop coming in the form of Reverend and The Makers.

The Sheffield-based outfit, famed for singles such as Heavyweight Champion of the World, He Said He Loved Me and Open Your Window, will take a top slot of the main stage line up.

They will be joined by the Grand Master of Reggae himself, the legendary Lee 'Scratch' Perry, who has been inspiring artists across the globe since he first shook up the industry in 1954.

Other confirmed performers include Jonny Foreigner, The Foxes, Laura Vane, Heels Catch Fire and The Gin Riots.

There's plenty on offer at the festival's four other stages, which include WoFo (world and folk), dance and BBC Introducing.

Sellindge is the first of Kent's major festivals and will be followed by Lounge on the Farm and the Hop Farm weekenders.

LOTF, held at Merton Farm, Canterbury, has earned a reputation as the county's best-loved, family friendly event, putting substance before size.

Meanwhile, the Hop Farm team

WORTH A VISIT: The National Trust property Ickworth House, Horringer, and below, St Edmundsbury Cathedral in Bury St Edmunds

So much to see , just a short drive from home

■ BY PETER WOODMAN

STAYCATIONS – where people holiday in Britain to keep costs down – are all the rage at present, so we took ourselves off to Suffolk.

Our first stop was Newmarket, close to the racecourse which made this town world famous. We stayed at Bedford Lodge, an imposing hotel a short walk from the centre of town.

From the hotel we could see race-horses being led to the practice gallop areas.

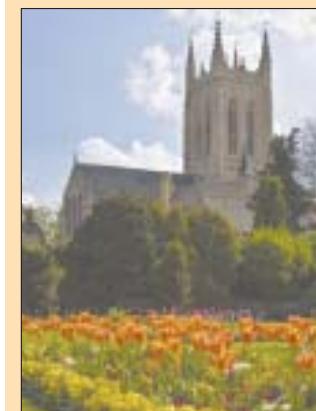

In the town, there are numerous pubs and restaurants, as well as a national horse-racing museum, which traces the story of British racing from its Royal origins at Newmarket to the modern day. Visitors also have the chance to ride racehorse simulator.

We drove to the nearby West Stow Anglo-Saxon Village and Country Park, where an old village from the period 420-650AD has been excavated and carefully reconstructed.

Our next stop was the historic market town of Bury St Edmunds. Our suite in The Angel Hotel looked over the town's main square to the splendid St Edmundsbury Cathedral.

Keen to keep St Edmund's memory alive, the locals built a great abbey to house the king's remains.

Thwarted in his attempt to make a pilgrimage to Santiago de Compostela, one abbot – Anselm – instead built a church to St James next door to the abbey in the 12th century. This became St Edmundsbury Cathedral in 1914, and we walked down the nave which was built by Tudor architect John Wastell, whose works include King's College in Cambridge.

Almost 50 years of work on the cathedral was completed in 2005, and has resulted in an imposing Millennium Tower, a complete rebuilding of the east end of the cathedral, and a new porch and cloisters.

It was only a short drive along the A143 from Bury to the sleepy village of Horringer for our final stop, and we thought we would try self-catering. That's how we ended up at The Old Piggery – a delightful converted cottage on the edge of the village.

Newly-renovated, this is a romantic base for couples with a beamed living area, luxury bathroom and splendid kitchen.

By now, the weather, which had been a bit patchy, had settled for hot sun and cloudless skies. Outside the cottage, bees invaded the lavender in a high-summer frenzy. We strolled through the village to The Beehive pub for a sumptuous meal.

Horringer is home to Ickworth House, home of the historic and eccentric Hervey family. Set in 1,500 acres of grounds, the house is a giant Peter Woodman stayed at Bedford Lodge, Newmarket, where double rooms (B&B) start at £99 per night.

Reservations: 01638 663175 and www.bedfordlodgehotel.co.uk.

In Bury St Edmunds, double rooms (B&B) at The Angel start at £90.

Reservations: 01284 714000 and www.theangel.co.uk.

Peter's stay at The Old Piggery was arranged by Best of Suffolk, which offers two-night breaks from £225, three nights from £285, a week from £495.

Reservations: 01728 638962 and www.bestofsuffolk.co.uk. A three-course lunch at The Beehive Pub, Horringer starts at £20.

rotunda full of famous paintings, and has been under the care of the National Trust since 1956.

Bury St Edmunds is handily placed for a seaside trip to Aldeburgh, a jolly town where we enjoyed a chilly, but bracing walk along the seafront.

There are plenty of restaurants close to the sea in a resort that has not changed much since the great days of the UK bucket-and-spade holiday.

Close to the seafront is the Moot Hall – the town's old meeting place, which dates from the 16th century and now houses a museum.

We also made the time for a stroll around Framlingham, a delightful market town which could be the prettiest spot in Suffolk. You can walk the ramparts of a quirky 12th century castle, which was modernised by Tudors who felt the need to add high, twisting chimneys.

The landscape is worthy of Constable, the great artist whose work brought this splendid corner of England to a wider audience.

So, rather than jet off abroad, book yourself a staycation instead.

MOTORS NEWS

Alfa's MiTo gets fitter from taking in the air

IT'S been on sale in the UK for just a year or so, but Alfa Romeo has already tweaked its stylish answer to the BMW Mini.

Amongst several improvements, the MiTo sporting supermini now has a MultiAir powertrain option answering a conundrum solved by few carmakers: how to lower fuel consumption and emissions while boosting power.

For the Italian star, the answer lies in sophisticated metering of air in the combustion cycle, hence the labelling for the popular 1.4-litre turbocharged petrol engine series (from £15,165).

Sixth generation BMW Five is a top attraction

BMW's new 5-Series saloon, on sale later this month, is the most highly anticipated new car of 2010, according to a poll.

The German carmaker's latest model took 20 per cent of votes to beat off competition from the new Audi A8 (14 per cent) and Jaguar XJ (11) in a survey by ContractHireAndLeasing.com.

Always a hit on the contract hire market, the sixth generation model is tipped to do even better than before by borrowing interior features and luxury from the director-level BMW 7-Series.

New 'F' grade all set to boost Lexus IS appeal

WHAT'S in a letter? Lots when you sell cars into the status conscious compact executive sector.

BMW employs the letter 'M' to denote sportier 3-Series models, Audi uses 'RS' and 'S' to boost the A4 line-up and wannabe Japanese rival Lexus is turning to 'F' to drive the IS range.

It stunned rivals with the IS-F V8 model, but this is a rare 'halo car'. What the IS really needed is the new F-Sport grade (£28,290) with exclusive alloys, grille, bootlid spoiler and cabin highlights.

UTTERLY ROOF-LESS: Peugeot have made improvements to the 207CC, with a roof that raises in 25 seconds and a more unisex appeal, but it is still no sports car in terms of style

Peugeot 207CC upholds true crop top traditions

PEUGEOT pioneered the folding hardtop convertible in the 30s, then it made them popular in the Noughties.

Peugeot's first modern day 'coupe convertible' (CC) was the 206CC (2001-07).

It was affordable and chic, but lacked refinement and the roof electrics had a Gallic tendency to shrug shoulders and stop just as raindrops began pattering all over the seats.

Fortunately, the 207CC (£17,095-£19,645) successor model is a huge improvement and the roof a delight, raised or lowered in 25 seconds at the press of a button even when moving at up to 6mph.

However, nearly 90 per cent of 206CC buyers were women and Peugeot admits its replacement targets the ladies too.

There is more unisex appeal about the 207CC, but it still makes a Mazda MX-5 look like a snarling beast and a Nissan 370Z appear certifiable.

It's no sports car in terms of style and the steering is a bit limp, but the 207CC can be hustled and gripped well.

ROAD TEST PEUGEOT 207CC

■ BY STEVE LOADER

STAR QUALITY

Driving appeal

Image

Space

Value

Running costs

Reliability

Green rating

There is a good spread of engines even if none packs much of a punch, and Peugeot has done a fine job making the 207CC feel rigid even in 'top down' mode – when the car looks best.

Despite a 2+2 layout, the rear seats will really only take children and are also horribly upright; should your tots fall asleep by some miracle, they will loll horribly as if dosed with alcopops to cut short any cries of "are we there yet?"

But the space is fine for shopping bags or luggage, especially when the roof is down and boot access slightly compromised.

Our 207CC test car was a highest spec GT model with the flagship diesel engine too and while this gives the car a lot of low down urge for pulling out of junctions and making progress on rural roads, it makes the Peugeot feel heavy. Having driven petrol models previously, I reckon they are the better bet here.

I also doubt whether a high specification is worth the money: you get alloys, air con and most other normal 'toys' on the Sport entry trim and trading up makes the 207CC look expensive against obvious rivals such as the Mini Convertible and Mitsubishi's Colt CZC.

With a class leading 1,865 litres of boot space, colour touch screen satellite navigation, bluetooth, and full leather upholstery as standard*, no wonder it was voted Top Gear's Luxury Car of the Year 2009. Starting from £17,715 RRP.

What Car? magazine has given the new Superb Estate an excellent write-up in its first review, calling the car "big, comfortable, plush and fine value".

The magazine was particularly impressed by the value-for-money offered by the Superb Estate, saying it's, "cracking value and undercuts the equivalent Mondeo Estate by thousands."

USED CAR ROUND-UP: OUR PICK FROM A KEY SECTOR

SMALLER 4x4s

IT'S not hard to see why compact 4x4 or sports utility vehicle (SUV) sales boomed ahead of the recession. By combining trendy off-road looks and high riding MPV versatility carmakers scored a double bull's-eye. Hi-tech diesels also allowed owners to buy image without paying wallet-busting fuel prices, but even small 4x4s are now seen as less socially and environmentally acceptable and used prices have fallen. However, one person's distress sale can be another's bargain buy – three of the best are featured here.

HONDA CR-V

HONDA'S CR-V is one of the best compact SUVs, but sales of the smart first generation car were hamstrung by the lack of a diesel option. That changed with the more rugged Mark II (pictured) and continues through the current and more stylish model – one of the smoothest, quietest and most economical diesels in the sector. All CR-Vs have smart, durable and versatile cabins, plus Honda reliability and, latterly, a 'Made in Britain' tag from production at Honda Swindon.

TOYOTA RAV

TOYOTA'S original RAV4 was dubbed 'the GTI off-roader' and revolutionised the small 4x4 sector. The Japanese marque recognised that few 4x4s actually went anywhere where they needed extra traction, so it concentrated on maximising on-road performance and comfort – the RAV was a huge success. The Mark II (pictured) was chunkier and roomier with removable rear seats while the current range has folding rear seats. Marks I and II included three as well as five-door models.

KIA SPORTAGE

KIA pretty much copied the RAV4 formula to create the Sportage, but this is no poor copy. Early examples couldn't match the driving experience of the RAV, but interior build and general rough ground ability is impressive. A midlife makeover boosted quality and on-road handling and attracted an awesome seven-year warranty. Diesels are the best buys, purely on grounds of economy. Shop around and you can also save on the two-wheel drive version, a recent introduction to the range.

PROPERTY NEWS

Trackers no longer the bargains they seemed

Steve Osborne, The Mortgage Man, shares his expertise with you in this new fortnightly column

A HEALTHY rise in house purchases over the past three months suggests that the spring sunshine has managed to warm up the housing market, even if it is still struggling to chase off the cold and frosty weather.

It is perhaps appropriate for this first column to begin with the welcome news that the shoots of recovery really are beginning to show.

The Mortgage Company has seen a noticeable rise in purchases over the past three months.

Before the recession there was a lot of interest in tracker mortgages – but are they still such a good deal now, or would you be better off looking at one of the fixed rate products?

Before the financial crisis, lenders were offering tracker rates as low as 0.1 per cent above Bank of England Base Rate, which was up to 5.75 per cent.

Since then, the base rate has fallen to an all-time low of 0.5 per cent, but lenders have steadily increased their tracker margins to an average of 2.5 per cent above base. The cheapest deal is currently 1.44 per cent above base, but this comes with a big fee, and a more realistic rate would be between 2.5 per cent and three per cent.

Compare that with current fixed rates, which start at 2.89 per cent for two years, and you start to see that trackers are no longer that special, and fixed rate mortgages will give you absolute certainty over your monthly payments.

With an election looming and a huge amount of government borrowing to repay, you might think rates could rise. There is no realistic opportunity for rates to fall, and the reassurance of knowing how much you are going to have to pay may balance the slight extra cost at the outset.

PRIVately-rented properties throughout the UK are being targeted by criminal gangs as a smokescreen for brothels and drug factories.

According to the National Landlords' Association (NLA), gangsters are attracted to rented properties for growing cannabis and manufacturing crystal meth because they are often in quiet residential areas where their activities can continue undisturbed.

Not only is the activity illegal, it could also pose a substantial fire risk as electricity cables are wired up or bypassed.

"If they are caught it is not the criminal tenant who has to foot the bill for damages to the property but the landlord," said David Plaister of landlord's group LetAssured UK Ltd.

One professional landlord reported that repairs to two of his properties that had been used to grow cannabis cost more than £20,000.

The criminals had removed internal walls and disconnected the properties from the mains electricity, thus by-passing the meter.

LetAssured recommend that landlords ensure that their tenants are comprehensively referenced using advanced data monitoring.

Mr Plaister said: "We would include credit checks, employer references and previous landlord references in our search."

"We empower landlords to visit their properties on a regular basis and not leave this to a managing agent, should the property be managed."

The NLA also recommends that landlords who suspect their tenants of criminal activity do not confront them but go straight to the police.

NLA chairman David Salusbury said that in many cases landlords could face repair bills of thousands of pounds, as many insurance policies are rendered invalid when criminal activity takes place in a property.

His comments came as police in the UK called on insurers to add clauses to policies so that landlords are no longer covered if their properties are damaged by cannabis growers.

CANNABIS FACTORY: By-passing electricity meters could pose a substantial fire risk to your property

The police want landlords to be registered along with their properties, and the properties to be inspected by local authorities.

The association highlighted five ways for landlords to combat criminal gangs:

- Take detailed references. These should include a credit check, and references from their employer and their current landlord.
- Don't take rent up front. Often criminals offer this as a way to ensure they are left alone.
- Check on the property regularly. This can be done at least quarterly or more regularly if you have concerns, provided you have given sufficient notice.
- Get to know the neighbours, as they can alert you to any suspicious activity.
- If you have suspicions of criminal behaviour do not confront your tenant. Go straight to the police.

Mr Salusbury said it was vital that landlords were aware of the threat criminals posed.

He said: "Criminal activity not only has an impact on the landlord's property, but on the community as whole.

"The production of some drugs involves highly flammable material, which poses a dangerous fire risk. More worryingly, criminals use the proceeds of their crime to fund other, more serious crimes, such as people trafficking.

"You may think 'it will never happen to me', but these incidents are on the increase. The checks you make before a tenant moves in are a key way to prevent becoming a victim of these crimes."

Cut out estate agent for better deal, says expert

A SHAKE-UP in how property is sold could help people get a better deal, a report from the Office of Fair Trading has suggested.

Industry expert David Amstell, founder of property website Briffy.com, which offers online property listings for just £55, said regulations to allow vendors to put their homes online themselves would "cut out the estate agent and all the nonsense that comes with them".

He claims that property prices go up because of the hype that agents create.

"If it wasn't for agents, property prices would probably be a lot lower," Mr Amstell said. "And, in reality, agents for the most part only do what vendors could do themselves – list their property online", he added.

The OFT report found that updating legislation to allow new entrants into the market could give buyers and sellers a better arrangement.

It highlighted weak competition between agents on fees and the correlation between rising house prices and higher charges.

RUGBY*Sykes takes centre stage in city's win*Canterbury 29 Westcombe Park 18

CANTERBURY chalked up the double over Kent rivals Westcombe Park at Merton Lane, to put them sixth in National 2 South.

The visitor's combative pack edged the first 20 minutes and it brought them a driving, close quarter try from Doug Abbott.

Park opted for a kicking game, but it was not accurate enough to put Canterbury under sustained pressure.

Pat Sykes, relishing his role at outside centre, came up with a reply in the 24th minute, smashing a hole in the midfield and floating a pass which gave Carlton Littlechild an equalising try.

A penalty goal from Lee Audis restored Combe's lead and as the half drew to a close, they made the most of a turnover to send winger Graham Purdy on a 50-metre run to the line, which Audis converted.

Time was short, but the city club responded positively as they piled back into attack. Showing commendable patience they probed the defence cleverly before Andy Pratt put Mike Melford (pictured) over for the try which kept them comfortably in touch.

Three minutes after the break Canterbury grabbed an advantage they never surrendered, thanks largely to a piece of good fortune.

Tom Best attempted a left-foot drop goal, but sliced his kick wide to the left where Sykes was lurking and got a hand on the ball for his side's third try.

Gert De Kock converted and the full-back was the catalyst for the next Canterbury score which stretched the lead to seven and won Canterbury a bonus point. Fielding a loose kick he put Melford into space and the winger scorched away from the defenders before sending Sykes over unopposed.

It took Audis's second penalty goal to keep Combe hopeful, but in the closing moments Canterbury settled the issue with a Best try five minutes from time.

It left De Kock with a simple conversion to end the scoring and give Canterbury the points.

RESPONSE: Kent chairman George Kennedy hit back at "flack" he took regarding Kent's financial predicament, saying he has loaned the club hundreds of thousands of pounds

Kent bosses set to unveil new chief at club's AGM

KENT members will be the first to meet the club's new chief executive when he is unveiled at the county's Annual General Meeting on March 29.

It's understood the club's committee has decided on the man they want to lead Kent cricket forward and are hopeful their preferred candidate will accept the post in time for the meeting at the end of the month.

County chairman, George Kennedy, wouldn't be drawn on who that man is, although it is known acting chief executive Jamie Clifford was one of those interviewed.

The chairman responded to "flack" he took last week in the wake of the club's dire financial results, by revealing he has loaned the county "several hundred thousand pounds."

The Scot was so upset with comments made converted a penalty corner to give the visitors the lead.

HOCKEY*Sevenoaks men's 1st XI 0*Canterbury men's 1st XI 6

The club captain made it two on 26 minutes, again converting a penalty corner, while Ross Gilham-Jones ensured Sevenoaks would have a mountain to climb in the second-half if they were to get anything from the game, with two goals in the space of just two minutes.

The points were effectively Canterbury's when Browne scored the fifth to complete his hat-trick of penalty corners on 40 minutes, while Matthew Bunyan scored from open play shortly after the hour mark to complete the rout.

Canterbury play hosts to Southgate on Saturday.

The club's ladies 1st XI lost 4-1 to Slough at Polo Farm at the weekend, Canterbury's consolation goal coming from Kathleen Taylor on the hour mark. They are next back in action on Sunday, when they travel to play the University of Birmingham.

about the financial results to the year October 31, 2009, and his role as chairman, that he decided to spill the beans about a loan he gave to the club some weeks ago.

The county club announced a deficit of £802,452, which included £190,000 for the two summer pop concerts last year.

Kennedy, obviously aware of the financial position the club was in, decided to use his own money by way of a loan to help Kent through. He wouldn't disclose how much that was, but explained he wanted to do his bit for the good of Kent cricket.

"I put some money into the club because mainly I went to the banks and although they were very helpful, they are very expensive. With the interest rates and other fees coming into it, I thought if we could avoid that then we'll do it, so I decided to put some of my own money in.

"It's an act of good faith and I hope people will realise that I am doing my best to support the club in every possible way."

The 69-year-old was hopeful of keeping the loan quiet, but felt the reaction from the club's members and supporters this week after the results were made public, forced his hand.

He said: "We decided to keep it quiet and it was done several weeks ago, but I got so much flack from people saying 'he doesn't care, he doesn't do this he doesn't do that' so I thought it was time people realised that I do care and I am trying to do something about it."

"I keep telling people it's a members' club and members have to help. I'm a member and that's my gesture."

Omens not good as Town face relegation dogfight

FOOTBALL

■ BY STEVE TERVET

Eastbourne Town 3

Francis 54, 83, Simmons 76

Whitstable Town 1

Dolton 87

THERE were no complaints from Whitstable Town manager Mark Munday after he saw his side drop back into the Ryman South relegation zone with defeat at Eastbourne.

The East Sussex side are propping up the table, but Munday admitted the Oystermen deserved nothing from the game after turning in a lifeless performance.

The first-half of a scrappy contest ended goalless, but the hosts went ahead nine minutes into the second-half when Charlie Francis headed beyond Kevin Fewell.

Things got worse for Whitstable in the 76th minute when Eastbourne skipper Danny Simmons unleashed a terrific volley to double the lead and any hopes of a dramatic comeback were snuffed out seven minutes from time.

Francis bagged his second of the afternoon to complete a miserable afternoon for Whitstable, for who Dan Dolton's late free-kick failed to provide any consolation.

SCANT REWARD: Dan Dolton scored Town's only goal

The defeat, coupled with Ashford's 4-1 win over fellow strugglers Walton Casuals, saw Whitstable fall behind their rivals in the bid for survival and back into the relegation zone.

Munday knows there can be no repeat of the lethargy he witnessed on Saturday.

He said: "We got what we deserved, which was nothing. It was a scrappy affair, neither side created any good chances."

Whitstable Town starting XI

Subs used: Hitchings (Gooding 65), Stubbs (Cornhill 65)

"We were particularly poor, we had no energy, we were out-fought and out-thought. We turned up thinking we should be beating these sides and they wanted it more than us.

"Every team has an off day and we need to put it behind us as quickly as possible.

"I think it [the relegation dogfight] will go down to the last day and there will be another couple of teams coming into it, the likes of Chipstead and Corinthian Casuals."

There was a glimmer of hope for Munday, however, with the news that Sam Denly's metatarsal damage was merely the re-occurrence of an old injury. Denly had been ruled out for four weeks, but he was expected to feature for the Oystermen at Whyteleafe last night.

Munday, who said he would have swapped his side's gutsy display in their 3-1 defeat at Croydon for a win at Eastbourne, rued poor defending on Saturday, but took solace in the number of games remaining.

"We are aware of who's around us and it's still in our own hands," he said.

BEATEN: Herne Bay (right) lost first game in nine outings

Bay's title hopes dented by Town

Herne Bay 0 Sevenoaks Town 2

WHAT looked to be a tricky home fixture against a much-improved Sevenoaks Town proved to be just that as Herne Bay lost their first league game in nine outings.

With leaders Faversham Town winning at Lordswood on the same day, defeat for Bay means they will be relying on Town slipping up twice before the end of the season if they are to pip them to the title.

Having beaten Faversham in the first leg of the Premier Division Cup 3-1 last Tuesday (the second leg was due to be played last night), Saturday was always going to be a tough game against a side that have quietly moved up to third in the division.

Bay manager Simon Halsey was deprived of Luke Harvey, Stuart King, Darren Marsden, David Crofts, Louis Valencia and Jamie Maxted who were all either injured or suspended, which represented a chance for the other squad players to stake their claim for a place in the side.

It wasn't to be though, as Bay put in their worst performance of the season and dropped 13 points behind Faversham at the top.

The visitors took the lead on 21 minutes when Town striker Joe Creasy let fly with a thunderbolt from 35 yards out that flew past the despairing dive of Dan Eason.

Bay had the perfect opportunity to draw level when Nathan Eastwood collected a Dan Lawrence ball before being tripped in the area and a penalty was awarded.

Up stepped Simon Moore but his spot kick sailed high and wide over the bar.

Bay paid for their miss seconds before half-time when the visitors broke away from deep in their own half. Tony Atkins left Neil Perkins for dead and then rounded Steve Hanson before placing a low drive under Eason's body to double their lead.

In the second-half Bay lost their shape as they went in search of the goal that would get them back into the game, but it never came as they slipped to defeat.
